

INJURIES FATAL TO MRS. GEO. HULL

Died at Harrisburg Hospital Following Operation on Wednesday.

WAS HURT INTERNALLY

Second Death From Auto Accident in Which Irvin Hull Lost Life From Fractured Skull.

Although an operation was performed Tuesday afternoon on Mrs. George Hull, who was hurt in an automobile accident in which Irvin P. Hull, of Hanover, was fatally injured, Mrs. Hull died Wednesday morning at the Keystone Hospital in Harrisburg, where she was taken immediately following the accident. It was found that several of the internal organs were injured and the operation was resorted to, but it was impossible to save her life.

The accident in which Mrs. Hull received the injuries which resulted in her death occurred on Sunday, October 22, at about 11:30 p. m. at a sharp curve on the Gettysburg road about a mile south of Dillsburg. The party which consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin P. Hull and Mr. and Mrs. George Hull, Sr., were returning home from Altoona. Irvin P. Hull, who died several hours after the accident occurred, suffered a fractured skull. George Hull, Sr., suffered a hemorrhage on Monday night, being caused by the injuries which he received.

Mr. Hull, who had been with his wife since the accident except last Thursday when he was at Hanover to attend the funeral of his son, left the hospital, after being assured that Mrs. Hull was resting as well as could be expected under the circumstances. Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Hersh, New Oxford, the latter a sister of Mrs. Hull, visited the hospital Tuesday and left there at about 10 o'clock. Mr. Hull received word from the hospital Tuesday that an operation was necessary and that hope of recovery for Mrs. Hull was slight. It was found that her lungs had been punctured and other internal organs ruptured by the ribs which were fractured.

Mrs. Hull before marriage was Miss Ida L. Sunday. Her parents were the late George and Anna Ann (Continued on Second Page)

EAST BERLIN PASTOR OUT

Rev. H. S. Kehm Resigns To Accept Church At Palmettown.

The Rev. Harry S. Kehm, pastor of the East Berlin Reformed church, for the past two and one-half years has tendered his resignation at a special meeting of the joint consistory recently. The resignation which was accepted will take effect on November 7. The pastor will preach his final sermons on next Sunday at New Chester, Hampton and East Berlin.

The Rev. Mr. Kehm has accepted a call to the First Reformed church at Palmettown, and with his wife will leave some time during next week for that place. That was the Rev. Mr. Kehm's first charge, having accepted a call after his graduation from the Central seminary, union of Heidelberg and Ursinus.

FIGURES ON OATS

Adams county produced 415,590 bushels of oats in 1922, according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Statistics of the State Department of Agriculture. There were 11,874 acres planted in oats in this county. The total yield for the state was 39,473,333 bushels. Somerset county leads with a production of 1,609,940.

SHOT WILD TURKEYS

John Lightner and John Benchoff, both of Mt. Hope, have returned from Fulton county where on Wednesday each shot a sixteen-pound wild turkey.

STATE WILL HELP REMEDY NUISANCE

Department of Health to Send Engineer Here to Go Over Sewage Disposal Situation.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE MADE

New Pump and Two New Tanks Installed. County Home Has Equal Responsibility in Sewage Disposal.

Meeting in regular monthly session, Wednesday evening, members of the Gettysburg Borough Council voted to accept the proposition of the State Department of Health to send an engineer here to make a general study of sanitary conditions and advise on the proper disposition of the borough's sewage. This action was taken after a letter from C. A. Emerson, chief engineer of the Department of Health, received by J. L. Williams, Esq., borough solicitor, had been read and discussed.

For several years the odors arising from Rock Creek into which the flow from the borough's sewage disposal plant is directed, have been the subject of the debate among residents of the eastern section of town, members of the Gettysburg Board of Health and the town council. The sewage disposal plant is doing all that can be expected of it, in the opinion of Mr. Emerson, who says he is familiar with conditions existing here.

Councilman R. P. Funkhouser stated that a new pump and two new tanks had been installed at the sewage disposal plant and that now it was in better working condition than for some time past.

Mr. Emerson states, however, that a settling plant such as is used for disposing of Gettysburg's sewage has many limitations. He points out that these limitations are such that the flow from the plant is little better than the raw sewage, at least as regards nuisance forming qualities. This fact was clearly demonstrated during the dry periods of the past summer, councilmen agreed.

County's Responsibility

That the County Home has an equal responsibility with the town to purify its sewage is the opinion of Mr. Emerson. He urges that if Gettysburg is to construct a modern type of sewage disposal plant, the possibilities of joint action by the county and borough should be investigated. By co-operation between the two, he points out, it is cheaper to build and maintain the plant jointly than for each to erect an independent treatment system.

The cost of erecting a modern sewage disposal plant was touched on briefly by Mr. Emerson in his letter. But he stated that no one could tell definitely regarding the total cost without making preliminary surveys. He urged that the plant, if built, be constructed in steps or stages, until the entire unit is complete.

WILL HOLD RALLY

Harry A. Mackey To Be One Of Speakers At Republican Meeting.

Harry A. Mackey, candidate at the May primaries for nomination for governor of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Charles Gorton, both of Philadelphia, have been secured to address a Republican rally to be held Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the Court House, the committee in charge of arrangements announced today.

The meeting will be open to the public, it was stated.

The chairman for the meeting has not yet been announced. The committee in charge of arrangements is singularly composed entirely of women. They are Mrs. George Seaks, New Oxford; Mrs. Burton Allen, Littlestown; Miss Reba Adams, Gardners; Mrs. James Moore, Fairfield; Mrs. A. I. Weidner, Arendtsville, and Mrs. J. C. Knox, of Gettysburg.

LABORATORY HEAD IS UNDER ARREST

Alleged Source of Alcohol Seized in Littlestown, Under $1,000 Bail.

INTIMATES "HIGHER UPS"

Maurice Williams, Former Resident Here, Tells Agents they have no Idea where Investigation May Lead.

New lines of investigation were opened up in developments in the case of The Williams Chemical Laboratories in York, from which it is said the denatured alcohol was shipped to Milton Krug in Littlestown. Developments of a more startling nature than heretofore thought of by Federal Prohibition enforcement officials are expected as the result of disclosures made by Maurice C. Williams, formerly of Gettysburg, and head of the laboratories, who was arrested Wednesday by enforcement officials.

It is said that the exact nature of the information given by Williams will not be divulged by the officers. The warrant for his arrest was served Tuesday night as the result of the information, and bail for Williams was furnished by Charles F. Welsh, of York, in the amount of $1,000 for his appearance in the United States district court in Harrisburg on December 4 next.

Those Higher Up Mentioned.

It is not known whether Williams gave the officers any information as to those higher-up or in any way implicated as they refuse to divulge anything they might have obtained from him. They stated, however, that it seemed significant that bail was furnished immediately for court, without a preliminary hearing.

It is alleged that Williams also stated that there were issued approximately 20,000 permits such as he held, and if all were checked up, a large percentage would show a non-compliance with the law.

In the course of conversation with the officers, Williams intimated that the officers did not have the slightest idea of what a mess they have stirred up, nor can they comprehend just where their investigation to reach those "higher-up," may lead to.

Revenue Department Gave Permit.

The permit held by Williams was not issued through the department of prohibition enforcement, but through the internal revenue department, a significant fact. Williams' permit was for the use of specially denatured alcohol, and was to be used on the premises located in the rear of the building known as the Charles F. Welsh building at 12 North George street. The alcohol was to be used in manufacturing Williams' Nerve and Flesh Liniment and the permit showed that Williams had estimated he would use 1,000 wine gallons of the alcohol during a period of thirty days. The permit is signed by C. A. Hershey, deputy collector, who stated that he had found the premises in order, and approved by B. D. McCaughn, collector.

DO NOT COMPLY WITH ORDER

Houses Not Supplied With Boxes Or Slots Banned.

As the result of compliance with the mail order box issued by the Post Office Department on September first, four counties in Pennsylvania have been reported on the post office honor roll, as being one hundred per cent equipped as the order requires.

No sections of Adams county have yet been reported as having complied entirely with the order, which is surprising in the opinion of George Black, assistant postmaster in Gettysburg. He says there is only a short time left for providing mail boxes or slots.

After January first, said Mr. Black, mail will not be delivered at a house which is not provided with either a suitable and approved box, or slot in the front door. He said that the cost of such boxes is slight, and that they may be procured from almost any store in town.

DELAY HEARINGS IN FOUST RAID

Bail of Gipe, Miller and Foust Is Reduced To $10,000 Each.

Hearing of the cases against the five men charged with conspiracy in connection with the robbery of the bonded warehouse of Foust's distillery, near Glen Rock, last July, George C. Martin, Thomas Smith, Baltimore men, and David P. Gipe, Jacob K. Miller, both of Red Lion, and Charles F. Foust, of Glen Rock, were continued Wednesday until November 21, and December 7, next.

The three York county men, Wednesday, entered bail before United States Commissioner Samuel K. McCall for hearing on December 7. Originally the bail was fixed at $25,000 for each defendant. Wednesday, the bail was fixed at $10,000. Samuel Harbold became bondsman for Miller, while Foust's father is his bondsman and Messrs. G. Frank Kalkreider and Purd C. Flinchbaugh are bondsmen for Gipe.

Smith entered bail before United States Supplee, Baltimore, for hearing, November 21, while the case of Martin, who is confined to jail for having assaulted Z. Malone, a special agent of the government, and for possessing intoxicating liquor, was also continued to that time.

Why the Continuance

It is understood that the hearings were continued at the request of Herbert E. Lucas, special investigator for the internal revenue department. The date was set further ahead for the purpose of having the defendants indicted by the federal grand jury in Harrisburg some time in December.

The change in the program is believed to have been prompted by the probability of having the federal grand jury at Harrisburg draw up indictments against other men suspected with complicity in the Foust raid. These informations will probably be served by means of secret bench warrants. It is then hoped to push the case into the federal district courts, where all the defendants can be held for trial.

DIES AT 70; MOTHER LIVING

William Spangler, of East Berlin, Leaves Mother Over Ninety.

William Spangler died at his home in East Berlin at 12:10 o'clock this morning from the infirmities of old age. He was aged 70 years, 3 months and 6 days.

Although he was more than 70 years old, Mr. Spangler is survived by his mother, Mrs. Elvina Spangler, of East Berlin, who is in her nineties. He is also survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Collin Bosserman, of Reading township. Four brothers and two sisters also survive.

Funeral services at his late home Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. O. P. Shellhammer, of York. Interment in the Holtzschwam church cemetery.

JAMES A. JACOBS

James A. Jacobs died Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at his residence, in York, from the effects of a paralytic stroke he had suffered two years ago. He was 49 years old. Besides his wife, Mrs. Mary J. Jacobs, he leaves one son, Ralph B., at home and two brothers, George P. Jacobs, East Berlin, and Joseph D. Jacobs, Altoona, Pennsylvania. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

HANER-PATTERSON

The marriage of Charles M. Haner and Madora S. Patterson was performed Wednesday in Arendtsville by the Rev. David T. Koser. It is expected that they will make their home here in town.

Mr. Haner is the son of the late John and Elizabeth Haner, of near Gettysburg, and Mrs. Haner is the daughter of Sabina and the late William Patterson, also a Gettysburgian.

WOMAN'S LEAGUE OPENS IN Y. M. C. A.

Most of Thirteen Leagues, Affiliated with General League, were Present.

MRS. HANSON PRESIDES

Held Memorial Services in Afternoon for one of Founders of League, Mrs. C. F. Stifel.

Fourteen officers, eighteen delegates and more than thirty visitors attended exercises in the Robert Weidensall Y. M. C. A. building at Gettysburg College at 10:30 o'clock, this morning, in connection with the opening of the eleventh annual convention of the Woman's General League of Gettysburg College. The majority of the thirteen leagues, now affiliated with the General League, had delegates at the opening sessions of the convention.

Mrs. H. W. A. Hanson, of Harrisburg, president of the General League, called the meeting to order, after which Mrs. C. M. Pannell, of Steelton, read a passage of scripture. This was followed by prayer, offered by Mrs. J. F. Hartman, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. W. A. Granville, of Gettysburg, delivered an appropriate address of welcome, the response to which was presented by Mrs. Theodore L. Crouse, of Pittsburgh.

The report of the credential committee, of which Mrs. Jane Felton, of Gettysburg, is chairman, was then read.

The roll call of the leagues was responded to by the delegates from the various branches of the General League. Most of the leagues were represented at the morning session and as the name of each league was called, the delegate responded with a few words concerning the progress made since last year's meeting.

Mrs. Hanson announced that there were thirteen active chapters, with a total number of 2323 women enrolled. The enrollment has been increased by 102 members, since last year, Mrs. Hanson stated, when the membership totalled 2121. The president also declared that the General League reported raising $12,000 within the past year.

The meeting adjourned at 12 o'clock and reconvened at 2 this afternoon. Reports of the various committees and officials in the league occupied the greater part of the afternoon. (Continued on Second Page)

TO BEAUTIFY THE ROADS IN STATE

Harrisburg Man Proposes Planting Trees on Highways And Byways Here.

WOULD PLANT FLOWERS

Plan For Motorists to Scatter Flower Seeds Has Disadvantages. Selection of Varieties Would be Judicious.

Civic societies throughout the State, including those in Gettysburg and other municipalities in Adams county will be asked to co-operate in a movement to beautify the land along the State and other roads in Pennsylvania by planting flowers. The idea for this ingenious plan for the beautification of roads came recently from a Harrisburg man and has met with favor wherever it has been mentioned in the State.

In connection with this movement to plant flowers along highways and byways, the suggestion has been made that trees be planted first and that flower beds be laid out afterward. The State has already planted trees along the Harrisburg road from Gettysburg almost to Dillsburg and along the Lincoln Highway west several miles. Memorial trees to those who fought in the World War have been planted in York county along the Lincoln Highway.

Most of the trees that have been planted near here are flourishing and give every indication of adding much to the scenic beauty of the roads with-in the next five or ten years. In the meantime it is suggested that flowers be planted along the sides of every road here and everywhere in the Commonwealth.

It was suggested by the original sponsor of this flower-planting idea that tourists scatter seeds of flowers as they motor to and fro in the State.

This plan, while it was the germ idea of what is expected to come later, had many disadvantages. Indiscriminate sowing of flower seeds along roadways, it was seen, would result in death of the less hearty varieties and the survival of the fittest. It was also pointed out that instead of adding beauty to a road, the flower beds would no doubt resemble "crazy quilts," having all manner of colors and species. Birds would also eat much of the seed that was thrown along roads promiscuously, opponents of this plan agree.

The Pennsylvania Chapter of the Wild Flower Society of America has now become interested in the new movement and it is through this organization that co-operation will be (Continued on Third Page)

CUYLER DIES ON TRAIN

(By Associated Press)

Philadelphia, Nov. 2.—Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, and chairman of the Railroad Executives' Association was found dead today in the private car of President Rea of the Pennsylvania in Broad Street station.

Apoplexy was the exact cause of death given by a number of physicians who later examined the body.

The car arrived at Broad Street station early today and was placed on a side track. A porter, who called Mr. Cuyler at 8 o'clock, and receiving no response, became alarmed and summoned an attendant and a physician. The doctor pronounced Mr. Cuyler dead. He had been dead a little more than an hour in the opinion of physicians.

Mr. Cuyler was a lawyer but most of his time was taken up with railroad and financial affairs. He came prominently before the country in the recent railroad shop strike by virtue of his position of chairman of the Railroad Executives and took a firm stand against some of the demands of the strikers especially, that relating to seniority.

Mr. Cuyler was born in Philadelphia and was 68 years old.

MR. MILLS OFFERS NEW STATEMENT

Contradicts Mrs. Hall When She Says She Met Him at 7 A. M.

WAS LATER, HE SAYS

Not Earlier Than 8:30, Mills Declares, Since Children had gone to School Before They Met.

(By Associated Press)

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 2.—Looking up from work in a coal bin in the basement of the school house where he is employed as janitor, James Mills, whose wife, Eleanor, was murdered with the Rev. Edward Hall on September 14, today took issue with some of the statements made yesterday by the clergyman's widow in an interview.

Mills said he met Mrs. Hall at the church at 8:30 o'clock on the morning of September 15. Mrs. Hall yesterday she was at the church at 7 o'clock.

"I know it could not have been earlier than 8:30," said Mills, "because my children had already gone to school."

"The first thing Mrs. Hall asked me was: 'Anybody sick at your house last night?'"

We then commented on the fact that both my wife and her husband were missing and I said, "Maybe they have eloped."

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 2.—The prediction that a presentation of the evidence in the Hall-Mills murder case would begin Saturday, was freely made today in official circles.

Sheriff Conklin, it is said, is instructed to make all preparations to call the Grand Jury of Somerset county together in a hurry.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 2.—Wilbur A. Mott, special prosecutor in charge of the Hall-Mills investigation, indicated today that it was his plan to await a lull in the publicity that is attending the case before taking any decisive action.

He refused to comment on the interview given yesterday by Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall.

STOCK REPORT

Early Advance Is Caused By Great Optimism.

(By Associated Press)

New York, Nov. 2.—Short covering accelerated much of the early advance in the stock market this morning which ranged from 1 to 5 points in active shares. Speculators for the advance, noting a virtual absence of short selling and forced liquidation and the splendid resistance of the list to the huge volume of realizing sales, bought stocks with fresh confidence. Encouraging news, including reports that October's automobile production would exceed that of September, and conspicuous strength of foreign government bonds, also contributed to the more cheerful sentiment. Call money opened at 5 per cent.

THREE REPORT FOR WORK

Work of pouring concrete on North Washington street from the Philadelphia and Reading railroad station to Chambersburg street, was resumed this morning after a day of idleness, Wednesday. Of the twenty six men employed by the firm of M. and T. E. Farrell on the job, three reported for work Wednesday morning, it is said. The others spent the day hunting. By pushing the concreting a little more rapid by this afternoon, barring accidents, it was expected that the block of 339 feet would be completed by evening.

WOMAN'S FATE IS IN HANDS OF JURY

Mrs. Pease Case Ended in One Day in Murder Case.

USE WOMAN'S STATEMENT

State Prosecutors in Pattison Murder Case Hope For Her Conviction on Her Presence Near Scene.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 2.—Trial of Mrs. Marbelle Pease, of Savage, Howard county, for alleged complicity in the murder of J. Bernard Pattison of Howard county was begun and ended Wednesday, the case going to the jury at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The jury was made of H. J. Kolbe, foreman, Jesse Clark, Fred M. Dammeyer, William F. Childs, John M. Taylor, William Ennies, J. Albert Welch, Samuel E. James, Harry Price and A. Bowie Howard, all of Annapolis, and Charles A. Whittle, Jr., and Herbert Turner of the county.

Witnesses put on the stand included Detective James A. Manning of the Baltimore City Police Department, Dr. Thomas W. Linthicum, who examined Pattison's body after the murder, and Jerome M. Larkin, court stenographer for Howard county.

Mr. Larkin's testimony was to the effect that statements signed by Mrs. Pease on May 20 and 23, practically convicting herself of complicity in the crime, were authentic and properly admitted by her.

Mrs. Pease was represented by State Senator A. P. Brady, of Annapolis, and Jacob Meyer, of Baltimore. Prosecuting attorneys were State's Attorney James Clark, of Howard county and State's Attorney James Munroe, of Anne Arundel county, who conducted the trial of Cronmiller last week.

Small Attendance Surprises.

Both court officers and lawyers were surprised at the small attendance at the trial Wednesday. When Cronmiller was tried last week the courtroom was literally packed.

Her Testimony Convicted Lover.

It is generally admitted that Mrs. Pease's testimony at Cronmiller's trial was the direct cause of his conviction and subsequent sentence to 18 years in the Penitentiary. Throughout his trial she manifested the utmost coolness under cross-examination by attorneys for the prosecution, and without the slightest trace of emotion sent the man whom she admitted had been her lover for the past three years to the Penitentiary.

According to testimony in Cronmiller's trial, the murder of Pattison was actually accomplished by Cronmiller himself, who fired the fatal shots. Only the vigorous denial of Mrs. Pease's testimony by the defendant and his cross-accusation that she herself had shot Pattison saved him from the gallows, it is believed.

Near By At Time Of Crime.

The trial brought out the fact, however, that Mrs. Pease was not far away when the murder was committed, and her subsequent action in not notifying the police of the occurrence and her attempt to dispose of the revolver with which Pattison was killed make her an accessory after the fact.

WANT TO SMOKE ON TRAIN?

Women Can Do So Without Violating Any Rules.

Philadelphia, Nov. 2.—If a lady's all tired out—

And she's riding on a train— Is there any earthly reason why she shouldn't step into the smoker and take a few whiffs of a cigarette? "Certainly not," announced the young man in charge of one of the Reading Railroad business offices. "There's no rule against it."

"Is the situation likely to reach the point where special smokers for women will have to be added?" The young man smiled. He tried to frame an accurate answer, and failing, vanished to consult the "higher ups." In ten minutes he brought back the message: "Anything can happen."

The conversation was the outgrowth of reports that on some Reading lines women are monopolizing the smokers to such an extent that there is no room left for late-arriving men. The story is told of one man who was forced to take himself and his "bag" into the baggage car.

ENVOY RECEIVES REBUKE FOR ACT

Italian Premier Asks Ambassador Sforza to Remain at His Post.

RICCI HAS RESIGNED

Wishes to Leave New Government Free to Choose Men it Trusts. Reconsideration Asked.

Rome, Nov. 2.—Vittorio Rolandi Ricci, Italian Ambassador at Washington, has presented his resignation like his colleagues, Count Sforza, Ambassador at Paris, and Senator Frassati, Ambassador at Berlin, wishing to leave Premier Mussolini free to choose his own trusted men for such important posts.

It developed Wednesday that Premier Mussolini had sent a reply to the letter of resignation from Count Sforza, which was received Tuesday, reproaching him for his action and asking him to remain at his post.

Premier Mussolini's letter to Count Sforza, Ambassador to France, read: "I feel bound to regard as a scarcely friendly and very ill-timed action your decision to resign before you have official knowledge of the direction I shall take in the matter of foreign policy, which I shall lay before the Chamber, and which will in any case not be simply the sum total of sentiments, as you mistakenly suppose."

"I therefore formally invite you to remain at your post and not to embarrass a Government which represents the loftiest expression of the national conscience."

"I shall be glad of a reply to my telegram, reserving to myself a further decision in your case."

Not in Harmony

Washington, Nov. 2.—Because his political affiliations are at variance with those of the new Italian Premier, it is the belief in diplomatic circles here that the resignation of Senator Ricci as Italian Ambassador to the United States probably will be accepted and that another will be sent to Washington to replace him.

While some of the resignations being tendered by members of the Italian diplomatic corps are regarded here as having only a perfunctory significance, the case of Senator Ricci is looked upon as falling in a different category. He was rated as a Liberal Democrat, and although he never inclined to the extreme Socialist view, it is known here that his political views do not accord with those of the conservatives who compose the Fascist party.

RECTOR'S WIDOW DENIES HER GUILT

Ignorant of How Husband Met Death With Mrs. Mills on Farm.

PASTOR WAS TRUE TO HER

Says She Has No Vindictive Feeling Toward Anyone. Knew Nothing of Letters to Choir Singer.

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 2.—Breaking her silence Wednesday for the first time, Mrs. Frances Noel Hall Wednesday told reporters that she was absolutely ignorant of how her husband, Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, came to meet his death with Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, choir singer, on Phillips farm September 14.

The rector's wife, at an interview in her home, arranged by her attorney, Timothy M. Pfeiffer, asserted that she had absolutely no knowledge of the shooting, that she was not on the farm the night of the double shooting, that she bore no enmity toward either Dr. Hall or Mrs. Mills and that she had no knowledge of any love letters having passed between them.

Holds Back Nothing.

Asked if she were holding anything back in order to protect anyone near and dear to her, she replied: "Positively not."

She asserted she still believed her husband had been true to her. Asked her feeling toward Mrs. Mills, she replied: "I don't know what to say."

Asked why she had offered no reward for the solution of the crime she replied: "I think it would be awful."

When she was asked if she did not wish to see the murderer punished she replied: "I don't wish to see anyone punished."

She explained that she meant that she had no vindictive feeling toward anyone; that she wished the murderer apprehended only because she did not think it safe for society to have him at large.

Mrs. Hall said she knew of nothing in the life of her husband which could have involved him in a murder and that she was absolutely ignorant of any motive that could have existed for the crime.

Asked what she would have done if she had known of any intimacy existing between Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, the rector's wife said:

"I would have spoken to him."

Asked if she believed in divorce she declined to answer. The questions started with one which concerned the story told by Mrs. Jane Gibson, pig raiser, who claims to have been on the Phillips farm the night of the murders and to have been an eye-witness to the double slaying.

Contradicts Mrs. Gibson.

Q. Have you any comment to make, Mrs. Hall, on that part of Mrs. Gibson's statement in which she said you were present on the Phillips farm on the night of September 14?

A. What comment could I make? Of course that was not so, and that is all.

Sunday, who resided in Hanover in the home where Mr. and Mrs. Hull later resided. She was about 59 years of age. On January 1, 1922, she was married to George Hull, Sr. For five years previous she had been matron at Bucknell university, Lewisburg, and was known to a number of students of that institution. She was a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran church.

Surviving her are the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. C. T. Hersh and Mrs. M. D. Felsner, New Oxford; George H. Sunday, York, and Charles A. Sunday Hanover. The following step-children also survive: George E. Hull, Jr., Harry L. Hull, and Mrs. Henry W. Stick, all of Hanover.

Funeral Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services conducted at the house by the Rev. Ralph H. Bergstresser, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church. Interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

"Did you hear about Blithersby?" "No. What happened to him?" "He lost control of his car and—" "Don't tell me it was an accident." "It wasn't an accident. It was the most natural thing in the world. THOMAS N. PAGE DIES IN VIRGINIA

Expires Suddenly While Visiting Home of Relatives in Hanover County.

WON FAME IN LITERATURE

"Mayse Chan," "Red Rock," And "Two Little Confederates" Among His Works.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 2.—Thomas Nelson Page, former ambassador to Italy and widely known author, died at the home of relatives in Hanover county, Va., Wednesday. Mr. Page's death was sudden. The first intimation Richmond relatives had of his illness came Wednesday morning when they were called to the plantation where the former ambassador had gone for a rest. The only detail received here was that the end came at 1:20 p. m.

Won Fame in Literature

Although he served as American ambassador at Rome for six years, Mr. Page was best known for his literary productions, which had made a name for him at home and abroad before President Wilson, at the beginning of his administration, asked him to enter the diplomatic service. He was appointed ambassador to Italy in June 1913 and served in that capacity until August 1919.

He was born April 23, 1853 in Hanover county, and attended Washington and Lee University. In 1874 the degree of bachelor of laws was conferred on him by the University of Virginia. Subsequently the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on him by Washington and Lee, Tulane University and William and Mary College and the degree of doctor of literature by Yale, Harvard and Washington and Lee.

Served at Critical Period

Mr. Page's service as ambassador to Italy covered a critical period in American and European relations and more than one of the important diplomatic notes passing between the United States and the Allied governments went through his hands.

In the summer of 1919, Ambassador Page came to Washington to confer with officials regarding the details of peace and reconstruction in Europe and indicated that he would be glad because of his advancing years to lay down the official burden he had carried throughout the war. At a long White House conference he laid before President Wilson a final report on conditions in Europe as he had seen them, and shortly thereafter he left the service of the government.

RAID LANCASTER HOTEL

New Hostelry Yields Large Quantity Of Old Liquors.

Among the eighteen Lancaster hotels and barrooms raided by the flying squadron of Federal prohibition agents Wednesday afternoon, was the Brunswick, the city's largest hostelry. There was nearly a riot among the guests in their effort to escape when the raid started.

In the old wine vault, the agents found all kinds of old liquors, Scotch, champagne and cordials, all of which were confiscated. A large crowd jostled and hissed the agents as they loaded the liquor on a truck.

Three of the agents while taking the booze to Philadelphia by truck were halted in Coatesville and arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct and for resisting an officer.

HALLOWEEN PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Luther McDonnell, West Middle street, entertained the following guests at a Halloween card party, Wednesday evening: Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Schurman, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Oyler, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Smith, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Colestock, Misses Alma and Ethel Schurman, Grace Weaver, Virginia Oyler, and Messers Frederick Hummelbaugh, John Rummel, Henry McDonnell and Joseph Smith.

MOTHER 90 YEARS OLD

Mrs. E. H. Hummelbaugh, West High street, has returned home after spending several days with her mother, Mrs. Steven Huber, of Chambersburg, who last Saturday celebrated her ninetieth birthday. Mrs. Huber makes her home with Mrs. Barbara Heintzman, Chambersburg.

OFFER STEEL DIVIDEND

New York, Nov. 2.—Directors of the American Steel Foundry today declared a stock dividend of 18 per cent, equivalent to 36 a share on the outstanding common stock, payable December 30, to stockholders of record September 9.

FIRST NUMBER OF ARTIST COURSE

Criterion Male Quartet Enthusiastically Received by Audience.

The request of last year's audiences at the Gettysburg Artists Course that a male quartet be engaged for this year was gratified by Wednesday evening's concert. The Criterion Quartet is composed of four delightful singers, Messrs. Mellor, Young, Reardon and Chalmers (assisted by Miss Betty Schuele) all of whom have won fame, both as soloists and members of the Criterion Quartet, Messrs. Young and Chalmers belong also to the American Quartet.

In their concert in Brua Chapel they maintained their high standard of excellence. They offered a wide variety of compositions, including "The Drum," Gibson, and "Twilight" by Duddy Buck. They sang as those who have had both individual and ensemble experience. They were generous with encores to the delight of the audience. Mr. Mellor selected for his solo the difficult "Celeste Aida"; probably it is best known of Caruso's solos. He sang in good voice and with dramatic power, reaching and sustaining the famous high "A" with ease. Mr. Reardon sang "Allah" and "The Volga Boat Song." His representation of the approaching and gradually receding song of the boatman was especially well done.

Mr. Young sang two songs, "Come Into the Garden Maude," Balfie; and "A Little Gift of Roses." Mr. Chalmers sang "I'm A Roamer Bold" from Mendelssohn's Opera "Sun and Stranger." The accompanist, Miss Schuele, acquitted herself nobly through a long program consisting of "Ballade in G Minor," Chopin; "If I Were a Bird," Henselt.

The second number of the Course will be a two-piano recital, December 12, by Ralph P. Lewars, and Edward Garrett.

WOMEN BOMB TROOPS

Ambush Soldiers And Openly Work For De Valera.

Dublin, Nov. 2.—Had it not been for the women the bottom would have fallen out of Eamonn de Valera's party long ago. They act as despatch carriers and bring revolvers and bombs to the ambushers who make their attacks from street corners.

They carry on a propaganda campaign without ceasing. A new role they have recently adopted is that of ambushers in Dublin. They throw bombs and fire revolvers at the Free State troops as regularly as their brothers do.

A few days ago three of them standing most unsuspectingly in the street hurled three bombs at a party of Free State soldiers passing in an automobile. The bombs missed their objective, but a number of other women standing near opened fire with six chamber revolvers. Two men and a boy were injured, but none of the Free State soldiers was. A horse and cab passing took fright and dashed into a railed area. The horse was so injured that he had to be destroyed.

PENN STATE GIVES EVOLUTION A LIFT

Succeeds in Improving Several Farm Products by Selection.

Scientific agriculture of today is giving upward evolution a lift. Agricultural experts of the Pennsylvania State College have brought into existence five new varieties of farm products. "Pennsylvania 44" wheat, "Penn State Ballhead" cabbage and three new types of tomatoes, all of which have been developed through experiments at the College, are proving under test their advantages over former varieties.

It is not easy to develop a new variety of fruit, grain or vegetable. Yet often it is of untold value to the world. Pennsylvania 44 has its beginning in a single head of wheat chosen in 1909 by Professor C. F. Noll as the best of 1200 selections made over a period of many years. This summer 10,000 acres of Pennsylvania 44 were harvested, and each acre bore an average of five bushels more per acre than ordinary varieties. If Pennsylvania 44 were planted on the entire 1,000,000 acres devoted to wheat in Pennsylvania, the increased yield would be in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 bushels and the increased income to farmers would be at least $5,000,000.

It is too early yet to predict a great deal about Pennsylvania Ballhead Cabbage. Thus far the college has none of this seed for outside distribution; but tests indicate that the new cabbage seed will yield nine tons more per acre than existing varieties. As for the tomato, something more than for the cabbage may be said. It is being well tested this year and had been rigorously studied previously. William Jennings Bryan, who has wasted no affection on evolution, has some of the Penn State tomato seed planted at his home in Florida. And in Mexico and Czechoslovakia, as well as in the United States, the new Penn State tomatoes are being grown this year.

The three new varieties, which have been developed by Professor C. Emory Myers, of Penn State, are the Nitany, the Matchum, and the Penn State Earliana. The first of these resulted from cross breeding a large red tomato with a small, yellow, pear-shaped tomato, and the second, as its name implies, resulted from crossing the Matchless and the Hummer. The third variety is a development of the Earliana. All of the new types give a luxurious yield, are of fine color, and of regular shape and good size. The Matchum yielded almost 50 per cent more fruit this year than either of its parent strains on neighboring plots in the college gardens.

MARINES BUILD A BIG AMPHITHEATRE

Completing Large Structure Which Has Not Cost Them a Cent.

Brigadier General Snedley D. Butler and his United States Marines, who spent two weeks on the battlefield last summer, are about to record another achievement according to reports from Quantico, Virginia, where they are completing a stadium there that will rival many a university athletic field and without spending one cent for it. It was constructed entirely out of waste and donated materials.

This great stadium, which was built by the Marines in honor of the Marine dead in all wars, will be used for the first time on November 11.

Victory of the Quantico football team in its first important game with a university eleven—the contest last Saturday with Georgetown—is said to have strengthened the determination of the Marines to complete the stadium, which is seventy five per cent completed.

The stadium is being built in a natural amphitheatre formed by hills along a small stream. The first task of the Marines, who are doing the work after the regular duties of the station are completed, consisted in changing the course of the stream. When finished the stadium will be over the stream, which will run through a conduit beneath the playing field. The ends of the semi-amphitheatre have been closed, this task involving the moving of more than 150,000 cubic yards of earth. The stadium proper will be 630 feet long and 325 feet wide.

The 100,000 seats are being built of concrete upon the sides of the hills; the cement was donated and the iron rails to reinforce it were obtained from waste dumps and supplies of condemned war materials. Thirty-three thousand seats will have individual plates, each bearing the name of a Marine who lost his life in the line of duty. A memorial arch will form the entrance to the stadium.

Necessary expenditure of money, which to date has amounted to less than $34,000 has been met through appropriations from the recreation fund of the base. Marine officers estimate the stadium when completed will represent a cost of $500,000 had the work been done by private contractors.

"Are you willing to admit that your ancestors were monkeys?" asked the contentious person. "After thinking the matter over, I believe I am," replied Mr. Grumson. "Naturalists tell us there is no such thing as 'triangle stuff' in the jungles."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A NIGHT UNDER GARLAND'S ROOF

Close-up of Millionaire Philosopher

By Josephine Van de Griff
NEA Service Staff Writer.

Middleboro, Mass., Nov. 2.—I have spent a night under the roof of Charles Garland, 23-year-old millionaire, who gave up fortune, wife and children in order that he might be himself.

His hermit retreat is a reconstructed hen house, divided through the middle and equipped with a stove, a table, a cot, a desk, a lamp and a typewriter. Here is the oddly assorted family which is seeking to wrest happiness out of Garland's tumbledown farm seven miles out from this picturesque little town:

Garland—tall, clad in a heavy woolen shirt, khaki trousers, woolen stockings and moccasins; a little shaggy mustach, betraying gleaming white teeth when he smiles.

Doris Benson—foster-sister of Garland, sturdily built, hair cut short, clad in knickers and a blue sweater. Alice Edgerton—friend of Doris and of Garland, blond braid down her back, clad in knickers and green blouse, and using the soft "thee" and "thou" of the Quakers.

There Was Laughter.

As I stumbled across the darkness the lights from the reconstructed chicken house shone warm and yellow. A blond girl was sitting on the cot and hugging her knees contemplatively. A tall dark man was reading something out of a book. There was laughter. They greeted me kindly. "If folks would only get to know us," said the Quakeress.

As we sat and talked Miss Edgerton suddenly said:

"Hast thee been fed?"

And so while some argued and others listened, she built a brisk little fire in the range and plied me with hot chocolate and soup left from supper, and fresh brown bread. These persons who have figured so in the news are just like other persons, it seems, only, perhaps, a little kinder.

Over on the couch Doris Benson continued her contemplative stare.

"She's thinking about gas engines," explained Miss Edgerton. "Barley (the family name for Garland) was explaining the car to her all afternoon but she can't get it through her head." Doris was contrite.

Garland smiled at her indulgently. Every few minutes he would reach over to light a fresh cigarette from above the lamp. Behind the lamp were two rows of books, all the dialogues of Plato, all the works of Tolstoy, Wells' "Outline of History," "The Outline of Science," a volume of Ibsen plays, a work of Edward Carpenter, other books combining poetry, history and science.

Between cigarettes Garland leaned back in his chair offering occasional observations.

"Jung and Freud and the rest were given to interpreting everything through the medium of sex," he said. He didn't know but what some other medium would do as well.

He hadn't read "Tertium Organum" but meant to. Understood it was a meaty book. He wished more people would read Edward Carpenter.

Once he jumped up to get Webster's definition of pathological. Then he led an animated discussion as to the exact relation between pathos and disease.

Afterward he took a volume of poems by Edna St. Vincent Millay under his arm and went to his bed in the barn. Women Seeking Happiness.

The two men told me they are seeking happiness through this venture of shaking off the trappings of city life and living simply and plainly and close to the soil.

Though shy and wistful, Doris Benson vigorously denied that she agreed wholly with all of Garland's theories. "Anyway," she said, "each person has to work out those things alone. What I want to learn just now, though, is to be a good farmer."

Alice Edgerton was likewise anxious to learn to be a good farmer as part of the pursuit of happiness.

Almost as picturesque as Garland's has been the career of this friendly-eyed young woman who for two years has lived without money. Her clothing has been of the simplest, one skirt, two middies, and the plainest of other garments. Recently she has substituted knickers for the skirt.

Her policy has been to work wherever she was needed, in shop, hospital or home, and to ask for such simple things as supplied her wants. Holding such ideas it was natural that she should gravitate eventually to the habitat of Garland, where she has been living quietly for several months until the departure of Garland's wife for Europe again called public attention to the millionaire philosopher.

"At first," she said, "my idea was just to give what I could to others. But then I found out there is something bigger than giving—and that is sharing."

And so the night wore on. She drew out of the desk a little notebook of poems which Garland had written. Some of them savored remarkably of Walt Whitman, although Garland, she assured me, had not read a line of Whitman until recently.

Eventually we, too, turned in and the last yellow light was blotted out in the little reconstructed chicken house where a drama of considerable proportions is being played.

A kitten, until recently a derelict of the Boston streets, went to sleep on the foot of the bed.

CHAMP PANCAKE EATER

Gets Away With 73 in 31 Minutes.

New York, Nov. 2.—It may not mean very much to anybody but Jim Hartnett and his doctor, and maybe the traditional nearby drug store, but the world is hereby informed that Jim Hartnett ate seventy three pancakes soaked in butter and plastered with jam.

And because Jim Hartnett stuffed seventy three pancakes inside himself and then walked home, though feebly, Dick Topley and John McKenna, who, with Hartnett, hail from Westbury, L. I., have agreed to vote for Warner Baltazzi, the Democratic nominee for Congress from the First District.

Topley and McKenna have been undecided for some time whether to vote for Baltazzi or for Robert Bacon, the Republican nominee. They challenged Hartnett for a pancake eating contest, and Hartnett agreed if they would make their votes the stake.

The eating contest was held at Westbury, and in thirty one minutes Hartnett had covered himself with glory and his insides with pancakes, which is more than two pancakes a minute.

TOXINS AFFLICT T. B. M.

Accumulation Afflicts Most Successful Physician Assists.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 2.—Advancing a new theory contrary to most previous beliefs concerning chronic fatigue, Dr. Edward H. Ochsenr, Chicago, president elect of the Illinois State Medical Society, in an address at the Tri-Medical Association convention last night defined the "tired business man" as suffering from an "accumulation of fatigue material or toxin."

"The disease," he said, "is a condition particularly liable to affect hard working, successful business men at an age just when they are most needed in a growing business. The sloven, the laggard, the phlegmatic and the weak-willed are rarely ever affected. Rest, while important, serves only to check the accumulation of fatigue."

SURPRISE LUNCHEON

An enjoyable surprise luncheon was served on Tuesday, October 31, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, Lincoln Way East, in honor of Mrs. Miller's 50th birthday anniversary. At noon all were invited to the dining room where a table was filled with all good things to eat.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Granville Study, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Spangler, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Spangler, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Then Gale returned to his little fire, replenished it with short sticks of dead greasewood and mesquite, and, wrapping his blanket round his shoulders, he sat down to warm himself and to wait till it was time to bring in the horse and the him up.

The fire was inadequate, and Gale was cold and wet with dew. Hunger and thirst were with him. His bones ached, and there was a dull, deep-seated pain throbbing in his unhealed wound.

Judged by the great average of ideals and conventional standards of life, Dick Gale was a starved, lonely, suffering, miserable wretch. But in his case the judgment would have hit only externals, would have missed the vital inner truth. For Gale was happy with a kind of strange, wild glory in the privations, the pains, the perils, and the silence and solitude to be endured on this desert land.

He had a duty to a man who relied on his services. He was a comrade, a friend, a valuable ally to riding, fighting rangers. Gale's happiness, as far as it concerned the toil and strife, was perhaps a grim and stoical one. But love abided with him, and it had engendered and fostered other undeveloped traits—romance and a feeling for beauty, and a keen observation of nature. He felt pain, but he was never miserable. He felt the solitude, but he was never lonely.

As he rode across the desert, even though keen eyes searched for the moving black dots, the rising puffs of white dust that were warnings, he saw Nell's face in every cloud. The clean-cut mesas took on the shape of her straight profile, with its strong chin and lips, its fine nose and forehead. There was always a glint of gold or touch of red or graceful line or gleam of blue to remind him of her. Then at night her face shone warm and glowing, flushing and paling, in the campfire.

By and by Gale remembered what he was waiting for; and, getting up, he took the halter and went out to find Blanco Sol. It was pitch-dark now, and Gale could not see a rod ahead. He felt his way, and presently as he rounded a mesquite he saw Sol's white shape outlined against the blackness. Gale halted him in the likeliest patch of grass and returned to his camp. There he lifted his saddle into a protected spot under a low wall of the mound, and laying one blanket on the sand, he covered himself with the other and stretched himself for the night.

Daylight came quickly. The morning was clear and nipping cold. He threw off the wet blanket and got up cramped and half frozen. A little brisk action was all that was necessary to warm his blood and loosen his muscles, and then he was fresh, tingling, eager. The sun rose in a golden haze, and the descending valley took on wondrous changing hues. Then he fetched up Blanco Sol, saddled him, and tied him to the thickest camp of mesquite.

"Sol, well have a drink pretty soon," he said, patting the splendid neck.

Gale meant it. He would not eat till he had watered his horse. No three rangers could keep Gale away from that well. Taking his rifle in hand, he faced up the arroyo. From the lay of the land and position of trees seen by daylight, he found an easier and safer course than the one he had taken in the dark. And by careful work he was enabled to get closer to the well, and somewhat above it.

The Mexicans were leisurely cooking their morning meal. A slow stirrer stirred in Gale as he watched the trio. They showed not the slightest indication of breaking camp. One fellow, evidently the leader, packed a gun at his hip, the only weapon in sight. Gale noted this with speculative eyes.

Then he saw two Indians on burros come riding up the other side of the knoll upon which the adobe house stood; and apparently they were not aware of the presence of the Mexicans, for they came on up the path. One Indian was a Papago. The other, striking in appearance for other reasons than that he seemed to be about to fall from the burro, Gale took to be a Yaqui. They came over the knoll and down the path toward the well.

Gale could bear no more. He took a quick shot at the rider. He missed the moving figure, but hit the horse. There was a bound, a horrid scream, a mighty plunge, then the horse went down, giving the Mexican a stunning fall. Both beast and man lay still.

Gale rushed from his cover to intercept the other riders before they could reach the house and their weapons. Then the frightened horses burst the corral bars, and in a thundering, dust-mantled stream fled up the arroyo.

The fallen rider sat up, mumbling to his sants in one breath, cursing in his next.

"Go, Greasers! Run!" yelled Gale. Then he yelled it in Spanish. At the point of his rifle he drove the two riders out of the camp. His next move was to run into the house and fetch out the carbines. With a heavy stone he dismantled each weapon. That done, he set out on a run for his horse. Blanco Sol heard him coming and whistled a welcome, and when Gale ran up the horse was snorting war. Mounting, Gale rode rapidly back to the scene of the action, and his first thought, when he arrived at the well, was to give Sol a drink and to fill his canteens.

Then Gale led his horse up out of the waterhole, and decided before remounting to have a look at the Indians. The Papago had been shot through the heart, but the Yaqui was still alive. Moreover, he was conscious and staring up at Gale with great, strange, somber eyes, black as volcanic slag.

"Gringo good—no kill," he said, in husky whisper.

His speech was not affirmative so much as questioning.

At the third shot the Papago shrieked and tumbled off his burro to fall in a heap. The other Indian swayed, as if the taking away of the support lent by his comrade had brought collapse, and with the fourth shot he, too, slipped to the ground.

The reports had frightened the horses in the corral; and a vicious black, crowding the rickety bars, broke them down. He came plunging out. With a splendid vaulting mount, the Mexican with the gun leaped to the back of the horse. He yelled and waved his gun, and urged the black forward. The manner of all three was savagely jocose. They were having sport. The two on the ground began to dance and jabber. The mounted leader shot again, and then stuck like a leech upon the bare back of the rearing black. It was a vain show of horsemanship. Then this Mexican, by some strange grip, brought the horse down, plunging almost upon the body of the Indian that had fallen last.

Gale stood aghast with his rifle clutched tight. He could not divine the intention of the raider, but suspected something strikingly brutal. The horse answered to that cruel, guiding hand, yet he swerved and bucked. He reared aloft, pawing the air, wildly snorting, then he plunged down upon the prostrate Indian. Even in the act the indolent animal tried to keep from striking the body with his hoofs. But that was not possible. A yell, hideous in its passion, signaled this feat of horsemanship.

The Mexican made no move to trample the body of the Papago. He turned the black to ride again over the other Indian. Gale was horrified to see the Yaqui writhe and raise a feeble hand. The action brought renewed and more savage cries from the Mexicans. The horse snorted in terror.

Gale could bear no more. He took a quick shot at the rider. He missed the moving figure, but hit the horse. There was a bound, a horrid scream, a mighty plunge, then the horse went down, giving the Mexican a stunning fall. Both beast and man lay still.

Gale rushed from his cover to intercept the other riders before they could reach the house and their weapons. Then the frightened horses burst the corral bars, and in a thundering, dust-mantled stream fled up the arroyo.

The fallen rider sat up, mumbling to his sants in one breath, cursing in his next.

turned a corner of the house, and completely surprised the raiders.

Gale heard a short, shrill cry, strangely high and wild, and this came from one of the Indians. It was answered by hoarse shouts. Then the leader of the trio, the Mexican who packed a gun, pulled it and fired point-blank at the adobe house, and again asked from local civic organizations. Professor John W. Harshberger, who is president of the State Wild Flower Society, has declared that a far better way to beautify the highways than to scatter flower seeds promiscuously is to secure the co-operation of local organizations interested in beautifying the landscape in their particular vicinity.

TO BEAUTIFY THE ROADS IN STATE

"Much would be done by concerted action," Professor Harshberger states, "and the plantation, judiciously planted and wisely controlled, would add much to the natural beauty of the State."

Professor Harshberger goes on to state that tulip trees should be planted from one end of the State to the other, along the Lincoln Highway. If the State would do this, he points out, it would have an avenue rivaling the famous one of Cypripedium trees leading to the temple of Nikko, in Japan.

"With these trees," Professor Harshberger concludes, "the civic organizations could do their planting of flowering plants with a judicious selection of the kinds that would succeed and wouldn't become troublesome later as weeds to annoy the industrious farmer, who has many things to overcome in the successful raising of crops."

SLAIN RECTOR WAS WOOR

Husband Of Woman In Tragedy Contradicts Bishop.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 2.—Mrs. Margaret Carleton, who with the Rev. Leonard J. Christler was found shot to death in the Christler home at Havre, Mont., last Friday, had confessed her love for Rev. Mr. Christler to her husband, Frank E. Carleton, former Judge of the District Court at Havre. So asserts Mr. Carleton in the following signed statement to the Associated Press:

"I can no longer remain silent in the face of the startling statement of Bishop Faber, given to the Associated Press as follows: 'I believe as a result of the investigation I have made of the tragedy which occurred in the Christler home early Friday morning, and after questioning those who knew about it, that if this woman had been able to work her will on Mr. Christler he would be alive today, unfaithful to his wife, but still living.'"

"This attempt to make it appear to the world Margaret threw herself upon this man and that he tried to remonstrate with her and lead her into a spiritual path has goaded me into expression.

"I wonder if His Reverence knew, when he made the statement referred to, that this pastor, who, it is now claimed, maintained only a friendly and ministerial interest in the Carleton family, had written letters to Margaret Davenport, my wife's maiden name, and sent them care general delivery?"

Bible Thought for Today

MORE THAN CONQUERORS:—All things work together for good to them that love God. If God be for us, who can be against us? Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us.—Romans 8: 28, 31, 35, 37.

Burgess William E. Olinger was instructed to enforce the ordinance which prohibits the extension of a bay window over a pavement further than a certain distance so as to obstruct the view from adjacent houses. J. Donald Swope, Esq., appeared in behalf of P. A. Miller, East Middle street, who laid complaint before the council, that a bay window recently constructed to a property adjoining his cut off the view from his window.

Reports were read and current bills approved and paid, after which council adjourned.

Members present at the meeting Wednesday evening, were C. B. Dougherty, R. P. Funkhouser, James McDonnell, Jesse Snyder, and C. J. Toot.

QUITS EX-KAISER

Master Of Ceremonies Balked At Ruler's Bride.

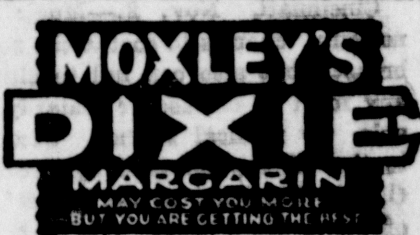

Berlin, Nov. 2.—Among those who will be conspicuous by their absence from the ex-Kaiser's wedding next Sunday is General von Gontard, who, until a few weeks ago, was master of ceremonies at Doorn. The reason why he is not invited is because he refused to saw wood daily with the ex-Kaiser. The following details about the row were given the writer by a man just back from Holland:

"General von Gontard was a great friend of the late Kaiserin, as he had acted as a tutor of all her sons, including the Crown Prince. When the ex-Kaiser first talked about getting married again to Princess Hermine of Reuss, the General respectfully but firmly objected. The ex-Kaiser resented the General's attitude and their relations became cooler. One morning William assigned General von Gontard to saw down a young oak tree and chop it up, a three-hour task. The General refused and offered his resignation. He left Doorn early next day and went to Schleswig where he is writing his memories, which will deal particularly with the life at Doorn."

The new master of ceremonies is Count Moltke, who has just returned to Doorn, after making a futile attempt to persuade the former Crown Princess and the ex-Kaiser's daughter, the Duchess of Brunswick, to accept an invitation to attend the wedding. Both were stubborn in their refusal. The ex-Kaiser's brother, Prince Henry of Prussia, and his sister, Princess Hesse-Homburg, have accepted invitations. The ex-Kaiser has consented to have a Dutch photographer take three pictures at the wedding.

SATURDAY'S GAME DEPENDS ON PILOTS

Buck Mensch and Johnny Rupp Will Oppose Each Other.

When Gettysburg and Dickinson come together on Saturday much will depend on the handling of the teams. The team from Carlisle will probably be in charge of Johnny Rupp, while the Battlefield warriors will move to the signals as called by Buck Mensch. Rupp has piloted the Red and White eleven to victory over Albright, Swarthmore, F. and M., and Ursinus, showing a particularly heady and daring handling when he played here against the Swarthmore team. Mensch has not had the string of victories to his credit that Rupp has, for the Battlefield boys lost the Penn State game 20 to 0 with Mensch at the helm. On the other hand Dickinson has not met a foe of the calibre of the Nittany Lions, and Mensch has not lost any other game this year, though Gettysburg has played Lehigh, Penn State, Muhlenberg, Susquehanna and Villa Nova.

Each pilot seems to have gotten the most out of his respective team in the games this far, in that respect they look equal. In another matter they rank the same, this is the first year that either has had a sure berth on a college eleven.

The real test comes to the team handler in a game such as will be at Harrisburg on Saturday, when he faces a team where the slightest advantage for or against his own eleven will turn the tide one way or the other. Saturday's contest reduces itself to a question of handling the team with daring, yet not fool-hardiness; of using all the force available, yet not wearing out the players; of caggy playing, yet not spoiling a trick play with too frequent repetition; and last but not least of pure handling, of being able to hold eleven players into compact unit, hold them solidly together, and drive them as such.

The outcome of the Gettysburg-Dickinson game depends more on the quality of the pilots than on the playing of any man on the field. Despite perfect work on the line, regardless of brilliant playing by the backs, in a game so evenly matched as this one, the victory is assured to that team with the better pilot.

MUSIC PRESCRIPTIONS NEXT

Doctor Says Harmony Can Lull Maladies To Sleep.

Cincinnati, Nov. 2.—Music has not only "charms to soothe the savage breast," but also can lull to slumber any form of disease or malady curable by medical science, according to the theory advanced by Professor C. M. Diserens, of the Department of Psychology at the University of Cincinnati.

Professor Diserens is making a research into the reactions of various tone combinations upon the human nervous system. He believes he will be able to tabulate his results and make his theory so practical "musical prescriptions" will supplant those of a pharmaceutical character within the next five years.

A single white sheet of paper covered with lampblack is the instrument used by Professor Diserens to test the reactions of a listener to Chopin or Irving Berlin. This is mounted on a miniature revolving drum, touched by a stylus formed of a long very delicate reed of straw. The straw is attached to a mechanism which in turn connects with an electric belt fastened closely about the chest of the listener.

"Obviously music can be applied to help produce quiet; that is to soothe, or to rouse or stimulate the patient," Professor Diserens said. "Music has been used in many hospitals for this purpose, but the values have not been worked out exactly."

"We are experimenting as regards the action of music in relation to electrified conditions of the pulse and heart and also the exact effect upon other mechanisms of the human body; also as to producing involuntary movement."

MAINE GIRLS HAVE REAL BABY

University Has Class Baby. Different Mother Each Week.

Orono, Maine, Nov. 2.—Girl graduates of the University of Maine will be equipped to become practical mothers.

That is, those who specialize in household arts. The reason is a real live baby has been added to the equipment with which the seniors experiment.

Whereas students in other localities have to theorize about how the baby should be dressed, fed and cared for, the University of Maine girls will be able actually to know. There is not a baby to be brought in once a week to be washed and dressed and measured and weighed. Theirs will live the school year through in North Hall, where household arts are taught.

To the seniors she is known as Frances Pauline, but it is explained her last name has been kept a secret by the faculty. It is known she is the child of a Bangor family which was willing to have her develop as a scientific baby. That is all. The seniors themselves decided she should be Frances Pauline.

BUYS WIFE FOR $5,000

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 2.—Mrs. Ruth Schermerhorn, twenty-three, a widow who recently offered to sell herself to any man for $5,000 so she might obtain expert medical treatment for her nerve centres, paralysed when her husband shot her three years ago, has accepted an offer from a Chicago bank employee. The Chicagoan, who, she says, is George Rogers, forty, has offered $5,000 to her and gives her a year to regain her strength before being married to him. He will pay $500 down and the remainder at intervals.

HALL, RESCUING MR. S. MILLS, KILLED BY ACCIDENT, THINK S WOMAN SLEUTH

BY MARY E. HAMILTON

Noted Woman Detective; First Policewoman in New York; Formerly Head of Woman's Police Precinct; Now Special Investigator Attached to Commissioner Enright's Office.

New York, Nov. 2.—It is utterly criminal that bungling of curious people destroyed practically every trace of evidence when the bodies of Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found.

Fingerprints, had they been preserved, probably would have disclosed the murderers long ago.

There is scarcely any doubt that this was a professional murder—I mean, accomplished by hired assassins.

Also it is reasonably clear that jealousy and revenge were the basic motives.

Questions Authority Of Letters

It is not so clear, however, what person or persons were thus motivated. A major point entirely overlooked thus far is that most people seem to have jumped to the conclusion that the numerous published letters indicate a close friendship between Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills.

I question whether the letters are authentic. I would want the penmanship tested thoroughly.

Did the rector, admittedly an unusually intelligent man, write all those letters? Could Mrs. Mills have written the letters attributed to her?

Perhaps they did write them. But the letters might have been written by some clever outsider. Either before or after the murder. That is important—before or after.

In trying to solve this mystery I would consider all these points. First, though, I would try to imagine what happened at the scene.

I would investigate that telephone call Rev. Hall received the night the two disappeared—the night he was seen on the street with a drawn and haggard face.

Shot By Mistake

Consider that telephone call. Build up from there—and you have such a totally different, and entirely plausible, theory as this:

That the assassins never intended to kill him. Perhaps they intended to kill Mrs. Mills—or maybe tar and feather her—but certainly to punish her.

That Rev. Hall's share of punishment was to take the form of being compelled to witness her death or humiliation—and a telephone call was sent to him summoning him to the scene.

That the rector put up more of a fight in Mrs. Mills' defense than was anticipated. Perhaps he tried to rescue her, and even got her away from her captors—and the two were fleeing.

That a shot was fired—at her, not at him—and she was hit.

That she may have fallen with the first bullet in her head—and that as others were fired at her, two more struck her in the head and one hit Rev. Hall as he bent down to help her.

These bullets may have been fired in panic—perhaps never planned—and Rev. Hall may have been hit by mistake.

The tender manner in which his body was cared for afterwards, as compared to the fiendish slaying of the woman's throat, dovetails with this theory. The crime may have happened at the Phillips farm or elsewhere.

Find out about that telephone call. Investigate those letters. Perhaps it is not too late—though thoughtless bunglers have blotted out the best evidence, the fingerprints.

EMPHASIS ON FIELD SELECTION OF SEED CORN IN ALL STATES

Selecting Corn for Seed in the Field.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Seed corn for next season's planting should be selected in the field from the standing stalks in September. The disappointing search for good seed corn every spring should be a sufficient reason for following this practice, strongly advocated by the United States Department of Agriculture. Any intelligent farmer can go into his own cornfield when the corn is mature and select high-grade seed if he has planted suitable types of corn and cultivated properly. If he has joined a county movement to develop certain standard varieties of corn which grow in that locality, and if he has raised these strains on his own land, he may reasonably expect a market for any surplus seed.

County Agents Report Progress.

Various methods were followed last fall by the county agents of the Northern and Western states in their efforts to convince the farmers that field selection of corn was a good thing which would amply pay for any trouble involved. Similar tactics may well be used this season where for one reason or another the local people are not in the habit of field-selecting their seed corn.

In Steele county, Minnesota, selection between September 10 and September 24 was urged. The week of September 24 was chosen as "good seed corn week" in Nance county, Nebraska. It seems likely that the corresponding dates this year will be the best time to go out into the field and choose the most promising ears, noting the character of the plants on which they grow and the details which indicate a vigorous and healthy condition.

The county agent for Dakota county, Minnesota, reports that a permanent and reliable source of seed corn is being developed by getting certain farmers in the county to specialize in seed corn work. They are asked to produce a dependable type of improved corn and to put in facilities for drying and storing it properly. The average farmers are also encouraged to select in the winter bring the best ten ears to the local county schools where shows will be held. The best ten ears from each school will then compete with the other schools of the township and the best from the township with the rest of the county. Six hundred and thirty-nine youngsters promised to try.

The agent for Washington county, Indiana, mailed circular letters and publications on the subject to all the farmers of his county in the fall, and had demonstrations given at the schools for the younger generation. The rural teachers in this county include seed selection of corn as a project in their agricultural work.

In spite of the development of a very successful central seed corn testing association in Rush county, Indiana, for several years. It is the opinion of the county agent that the testing alone cannot be depended on for eliminating corn diseases. Soil conditions and the heredity of the seed corn are factors which affect the growth of the corn, and the latter of these can be controlled by more careful selection of seed corn in the fall from the field.

Field Selection in Some New Places.

A great deal of interest was manifested in six field demonstrations of seed-corn selection held in Cass county, Missouri. This line of work was entirely new to many of the farmers present. Those who participated in the 200 bushels selected were further convinced of the value of early seed selection from the stalks, because of the adverse weather conditions later in the fall. The autumn was abnormally wet in this section, and the corn matured slowly; then an early freeze in November caused a low percentage of germination in seed selected haphazard in the ordinary way after gathering the corn.

In Mississippi county, Missouri, the work done in relation to the field-crops project in 1920 was mainly concentrated upon field selection of corn. This was carried out through community meetings which were held in co-operation with the county school superintendent. The advantages of lect their own seed, but the definite work of safeguarding the seed corn supply of the county is being carried on with a few men who are really competent to produce certified seed corn and equipped to handle it. Eventually it is hoped that there will be a man in every township doing this seed corn work and, where possible, having seed corn houses in which to dry it.

In Scott county, Minnesota, last year, 4,300 acres of selected seed were planted. For their 1921 planting 32 farmers field-selected their seed corn, and all had a surplus to sell. Stearns county has 31 co-operators in seed corn work. Minnesota No. 13, Rustless White Dent, and Northwestern Dent were the varieties used. Some of this certified seed was awarded to 30 farmers with their farm bureau renewal, thus insuring a good distribution for this year. The boys and girls of the county include field selection of seed corn in their club work.

Indiana Has School-Children's Contest.

Indiana has been especially active in emphasizing the importance of having every farmer field-select his seed corn from the standing stalks. A report of the county agent leader for Indiana states that in White county a unique proposition was placed before the children in six rural township schools. The pupil and father were to pick out the best bushel of seed corn to be found in the seed at home. This was to be planted on one side of a field, for identification. Then in the fall the pupil is to pick out 30 or 40 ears from the standing stalks for seed, and later the method to the individual farmer were considered paramount, and the improvement of seed corn in the county was also stressed. The demonstrations showed also how field selection would help to eliminate corn-root rot, if ears were selected from stalks that were vigorous and not ripening prematurely and on stalks that showed no evidence of decay.

Co-Operation by Written Agreement.

The county agent for Huerfano county, Colorado, visited 20 farmers last year who were among the foremost corn growers, and made written agreements with each, whereby they promised to raise their corn according to the usual method of cultivation, select seed corn in the field and store it in a dry place where the air would circulate. These fields were all visited by the county agent during the summer and an accurate estimate made of the percentage of stand each had, thus showing the non of what importance it was to plant seed corn that germinates 100 per cent.

Emphasis on field selection of seed corn has been general in all the states where corn is an important crop, and many interesting notes on the progress and reception of the work are found in the reports from Ohio, Nevada, New Mexico, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Kansas, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Utah and Washington. Many germination tests have been made, and there are frequent school contests to bring to the attention of boys and girls in club work the need for good seed corn.

SPIDERS NEAR-SIGHTED

Aware Of Presence Of Prey By Sensitive Legs.

The spider is very short-sighted and but for the fact that one pair of his legs is very sensitive, he would starve.

The fine lines of his web are as so many wires which keep him in touch with the outside world. With his extremely delicate feet he "taps" his wires—and receives all sorts of messages.

Thus he can tell whether his silken net is moved by wind, a human finger or by a venturesome fly, and he acts accordingly. Many a housewife has wondered why—though her broom finds webs galore—she sees so few spiders. She doesn't suspect that the cunning creatures "get the wire" of her approach by means of their very efficient telegraph service.

The spider's body is covered with tiny holes or pores. When he begins home-making, a liquid exudes from these pores, and in the air these liquid threads quickly harden and become silk. But it takes hundreds of these threads to make a single strand of web.

Instead of spinning a web, some spiders set up a house in a hole, merely covering the front with a curtain of silk or a silken door that opens and shuts or they weave a sort of tube and live in that. When a fly alights on this tube, the spider seizes it from within and pulls it through, afterwards repairing the hole made in the tube.

Should a fly fight shy of web or tube, the spider will come out and ambush his prey—hide behind something bigger than himself and suddenly jump out upon the unsuspecting insect.—Pearson's, London.

TO STANDARDIZE FLAGS

Department of Commerce Asks Co-operation of Manufacturers.

To call a halt to a steadily increasing number of freak varieties of American flags and to attempt the standardization of flags, the Division of Simplified Practice of the Department of Commerce held a meeting yesterday of representatives of the Army, Navy, Association of Flag Manufacturers of the United States, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and others. At this meeting steps were taken to develop general use of recognized national standards of size. One manufacturer alone is now producing flags of 88 different sizes, in 17 qualities, and from 1 to 9 styles in each quality, although an Executive Order of President Wilson designates only 12 sizes uniform in characteristics for governmental use.

President Taft issued an Executive Order on June 24, 1912 establishing 12 standard sizes. This order was superseded by an Executive Order of President Wilson, dated May 29, 1916, somewhat altering these standards. The industry has developed innumerable standards almost entirely different from those established by Presidents Taft and Wilson.

To set up recognized dimensions as national standards, the Association of Flag Manufacturers was asked to make a survey, and to prepare a report indicating 10 widths, and a uniform proportion of widths to lengths, which will best represent the greatest economy in the manufacture and supply of the largest prevailing needs. This report is to have the consideration of the Government departments and the Fine Arts Commission, possibly with a view to legislation setting up authorized standards.

STORAGE OF VEGETABLES

The Bureau of Markets of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture calls attention to the timely subject of storing vegetables and fruits for winter use.

Home storage is of importance at all times, but it is especially so now, because of present price conditions. This is the harvesting season for late crops and many people find it advantageous to buy at this time the necessary quantity to store for winter use.

The successful storage of vegetables is not difficult; in fact, good storage facilities already exist in most homes, it being only necessary to make use of the cellar, the attic, a large closet or other parts of the dwelling, depending on the character of the product to be stored.

A cool, well-ventilated cellar offers good facilities for storing vegetables and some fruits. Cellars containing a furnace frequently are too warm and dry for storing root crops, but it often is possible to partition off a space in one corner or at the end of the cellar as far from the heating plant as possible. Preferably there should be an outside window in this storage space, which can be used to let in cold air at night or at other times for the purpose of keeping down the temperature. Sound dry apples, as, carrots, onions, parsnips, potatoes, pumpkins, squash, sweet potatoes and turnips may be kept in such a room in good condition for winter use.

Lady of the House—"The milk you left this morning was sour, Mr. Jones." Aggrieved Dairyman—"There you are, mum! If there's any complaint the poor milkman soon hears of it; but you never tell 'im when the milk ain't sour, do yer?"—Punch (London).

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just before going to bed. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Says His Prescription

Has Powerful Influence

Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription and that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allen's, to others who took it with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense Allen's with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment. —Peoples' Drug Store—can supply you.

Worst Forms Of Skin Troubles
Quickly Relieved By Inexpensive Treatment.

If you suffer with skin trouble and the itching seems unbearable, do not think you have to use some greasy, unpleasant ointment to get relief. Try Hokara, a pure and pleasant antiseptic cream—guaranteed to contain no grease and has cleansing ingredients which vanish into the marred skin to do their healing and does not stay on the skin only to look bad and soil linen.

Hokara's power to relieve quickly any irritation of the skin and make it soft, white and beautiful might be called miraculous.

Minor skin troubles, such as pimples, blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., seem to disappear magically, and Hokara with its potent healing qualities is a successful treatment in ending chronic skin diseases like salt rheum or eczema. It is possible for anyone to try Hokara and be convinced of its merit—simply because—Peoples Drug Store—and all good druggists are selling a liberal sized jar for only 60 cents.
